

Dear colleagues,

We are pleased to invite you to the "Language and Cultural Identity in Linguistics Studies" International Conference which will take place on 25 - 26 October 2017 at the Institute of Philology of Taras Shevchenko National University of Kyiv.

At the turn of the 19th and 20th centuries the issue of identity took on a new dimension due to migration which spread values of tolerance, while at the same time focusing attention on national identity. All these aspects affected the structure of identity and how it was perceived. Issues such as multiple and indefinite identity, their transparency and changeability are topical subjects for researchers to study. In our information society, these aspects are reflected in the domain of semiotics and receive diverse verbal expression. As a result, we can talk about such phenomena as language and culture identity, that will be discussed at the conference. We hope that this will foster better understanding of the issues which may arise during Ukraine's European integration and deeper exploration of language and nationality development in modern Ukraine and will promote their harmonization.

The conference will cover the following topics:

- terminology in research on the issues of identity: ethnic, linguistic, cultural, national, and political identity; language and culture identity as described by Y. Karaulov in his "Linguistic Identity" and "Linguistic Consciousness" (O.Potebnya, H.Yavorska, P.Selihey and others), etc;
- linguistics approaches to the study of identity from different aspects and at different levels of language, from phonetics to the text level of language;
- construction of identity by means of language;
- interrelations between language and other forms of identity (ethnic, political, etc.): differences in their perception throughout both history and contemporary society ;
- variability, plurality, and non-identifiability of language and culture identity: linguistic and cognitive mechanisms that accompany these processes.

Working languages of the conference will be Ukrainian, English, French, and Russian. Articles reflecting the conference materials will be published in special collections of academic papers entitled: "Language and Conceptual World View" and "Literature Studies".

Please submit your applications for participation during May 1 to August 15, 2017 to mk_kartynysvitu@ukr.net. Group applications from Departments (specifying the section and the names of moderators) should be submitted before September 15.

Articles will be accepted during May 1 to September, 2017 at mk_kartynysvitu@ukr.net. Printed versions should be submitted at the room #86.
